

LOUIS MORABITO

LOUIS MORABITO is a South Philadelphia native. He began his acting career under the direction of Sidney Kay, formerly of the prestigious Neighborhood Playhouse, before making the move to New York City to continue his Meissner training at the William Esper Studio.

Louis starred in the highly celebrated independent film The 4th Dimension, which won the Grand Jury Honorable Mention award at the Cinevegas Film Festival and was named the Official Selection of the World Film Festival in Montreal. Louis received national acclaim for his work in The 4th and was pegged by critics as the “one to watch.” The 4th had toured the international and US film circuit and is available on DVD and iTunes.

Additionally, Louis shared the screen in the film, The Fields, with both Tara Reid and Academy Award Winner Cloris Leachman which is available on Blu-ray and DVD. He also co-starred in the TV pilot Sex Ed: The Series, starring Golden Globe winner Joanna Cassidy and won the lead role in Edgar Allan Poe’s The Raven available on DVD from Lurker films.

He has appeared on CBS’s Guiding Light and featured in several national and international commercials, as well as numerous print advertisements.