

HENRY DITTMAN

Henry Dittman has appeared on Black-ish (ABC), Superstore (NBC), Mixed-ish (ABC), and recurred on Mad Men (AMC), 100 Things to do Before High School (Nickelodeon), and the CBS pilot Welcome to Georgia, among others. He has done recurring sketch work on Jimmy Kimmel Live, The Late Late Show with James Corden, A Little Late with Lilly Singh, The Wanda Sykes Show and The Pete Holmes Show. Henry is also known for his work as an actor and story producer on hidden camera shows such as Prank Encounters (Netflix), Celebrity Prank Wars (Kevin Hart's Hartbeat Studios), H8R (CW), and David Spade's Fameless (Tru TV).

Henry is the current host of America's Funniest Videos' online content and also hosted five seasons of USA Network's Before and Afternoon Movie and two seasons of Endemol's The Smart Show, which he also co-produced. He has hosted pilots for FOX, NBC, TLC, Bravo, E!, and Cartoon Network and was a recurring panelist on The Countdown and Hollywood's Top Ten on Reelz Channel. He has also appeared in over 100 television commercials, most often in his favorite role: "jerk in a suit."

Henry has provided voiceover for countless advertising campaigns, as well as animated series, including Disney's Higglytown Heroes, Tiger and Bunny (Netflix) and Cartoon Network's Naruto. Onstage, he won the LA Weekly Award and the Ovation Award for his performance in Watson, a tour-de-force performance that the L.A. Times praised as a "hilarious mix of malevolence and effete decorum."

Not to seem too braggy, but Henry is also a fancy-pants published author. His comedy book, Daddy Drinks (co-written with French Stewart) was published by Post Hill Press and is currently available at Barnes & Noble and Amazon.