

MEGHAN HANLEY

Fresh off her feature in Forbes Magazine, Meghan Hanley is a Brooklyn based, internationally touring stand-up comedian, who has appeared on AXSTV's "Gotham Comedy Live," The MSG Network, DreamsTV, Fox's "Laughs" and "Red Eye."

Throughout the pandemic Meghan zoomed from home for private events, fundraisers, and corporate clients, including the NFL, Bank of America, The Girl Scouts, Intel, Samsung, and ZeniMax Online Studios. While at home, she also teamed up with Standup2corona.org, a non-profit, that kept comedians at work, while putting food into the food bank, through Feeding America.

She filmed a "Dry Bar Comedy Special," and her debut comedy album "This Happy," debuted at number 1 on the iTunes chart for 5 days in a row. You can find "This Happy," The Special, on Meghan's Youtube Channel, @TheMeghanHanley.

Hanley's quick wit and upbeat persona have led to her being featured in several Festivals, and two tours with Armed Forces Entertainment, providing laughter to our Troops overseas. As a writer/presenter, Meghan co-wrote and co-hosted the program for Fordham University's Inaugural Athletics Gala, as well as Advertising Week NY's "The Future is Female Awards." Additionally, Meghan smiles a lot, which some people find suspicious, but mostly endearing.
