

Caitlin Frain

Caitlin Frain is an actor, comedian, writer, and producer originally from Pittsburgh, PA. She was a breakout performer of the 2020 CBS Diversity Showcase and has appeared in Roku's short film "Born to Walk" and Fox NFL Sunday's sketch "Sacks and the City 2." You may have seen her in national commercials for AT&T, Google Pixel, KFC, Sam's Club, and the 2023 Kia Super Bowl ad.

Her hosting duties have included the children's web series "Big Life Journal Buddies" as well as the Snapchat dating advice show "Swipe Right." When she's not busy performing her deranged original characters, Caitlin produces for Kevin Hart's game show "Celebrity Game Face."

Currently, you can see her performing monthly on the UCB Maude sketch team "Lasers" and twice monthly on the improvised puppet musical group "The Sound and the Furry." Original characters are her strength, ice cream is her weakness.
