

SCOTT THOMPSON

Well known to fans as a member of the sketch comedy troupe The Kids in the Hall, Scott Thompson is anything but your average comedic talent. After Lorne Michaels discovered them in the late eighties, The Kids in the Hall created a groundbreaking television series which ran from 1989 to 1995 on CBC in Canada and on HBO and CBS in the United States. After the Kids left television in 1995, Scott and the boys went on to write and star in their own feature film, the cult favorite Brain Candy. Thompson appeared as a regular for three years on Garry Shandling's revolutionary comedy series The Larry Sanders Show as Brian, the assistant to Hank Kingsley. In this period and afterwards, he made numerous guest appearances on various talk shows such as Politically Incorrect, The Late Show with David Letterman and was a regular fixture on Late Night with Conan O'Brien. Thompson along with Paul Bellini, is the author of Buddy Babylon: The Autobiography of Buddy Cole, a hilarious memoir of one of Thompson's most famous characters, bon vivant Buddy Cole. He has appeared in such feature films as Ron Ronnie Run, The Pacifier and Mickey Blue Eyes and such television series as Hannibal, Reno 911!, Tim and Eric Awesome Show, Carpoolers, The Odd Squad, Man Seeking Woman, Touched by an Angel and Degrassi High. He has also worked on various animation projects, as the titular character in the popular children's television series Roboroach, and in Aqua Teen Hunger Force, The Simpsons and American Dad.

In 2008 the Kids took off on the road once again with a show of all-new material. The venture was so successful and creatively rewarding that the quintet created a new television show, the eight-part mini-series Death Comes to Town, for CBC and IFC. Another tour of new material followed in 2014, with the Kids visiting over thirty cities in the U.S. and Canada.

Scott is also a podcaster, hosting the popular Scott Free on iTunes, and a filmmaker. He has written, produced and starred in three short films entitled Fifty Two, Four Pounds and The Immigrant which won "Best of the Fest" at the 2012 Los Angeles Shorts Film Festival. Scott's latest series was NBC's Hannibal, where he played FBI detective and forensics expert Jimmy Price. Lately Scott has been touring the US and Canada as a stand-up comic and working on putting together his first television special and full length comedy album. Thompson resides in Toronto and Los Angeles. He is a Canadian citizen and holds an American Green Card.